Welcome

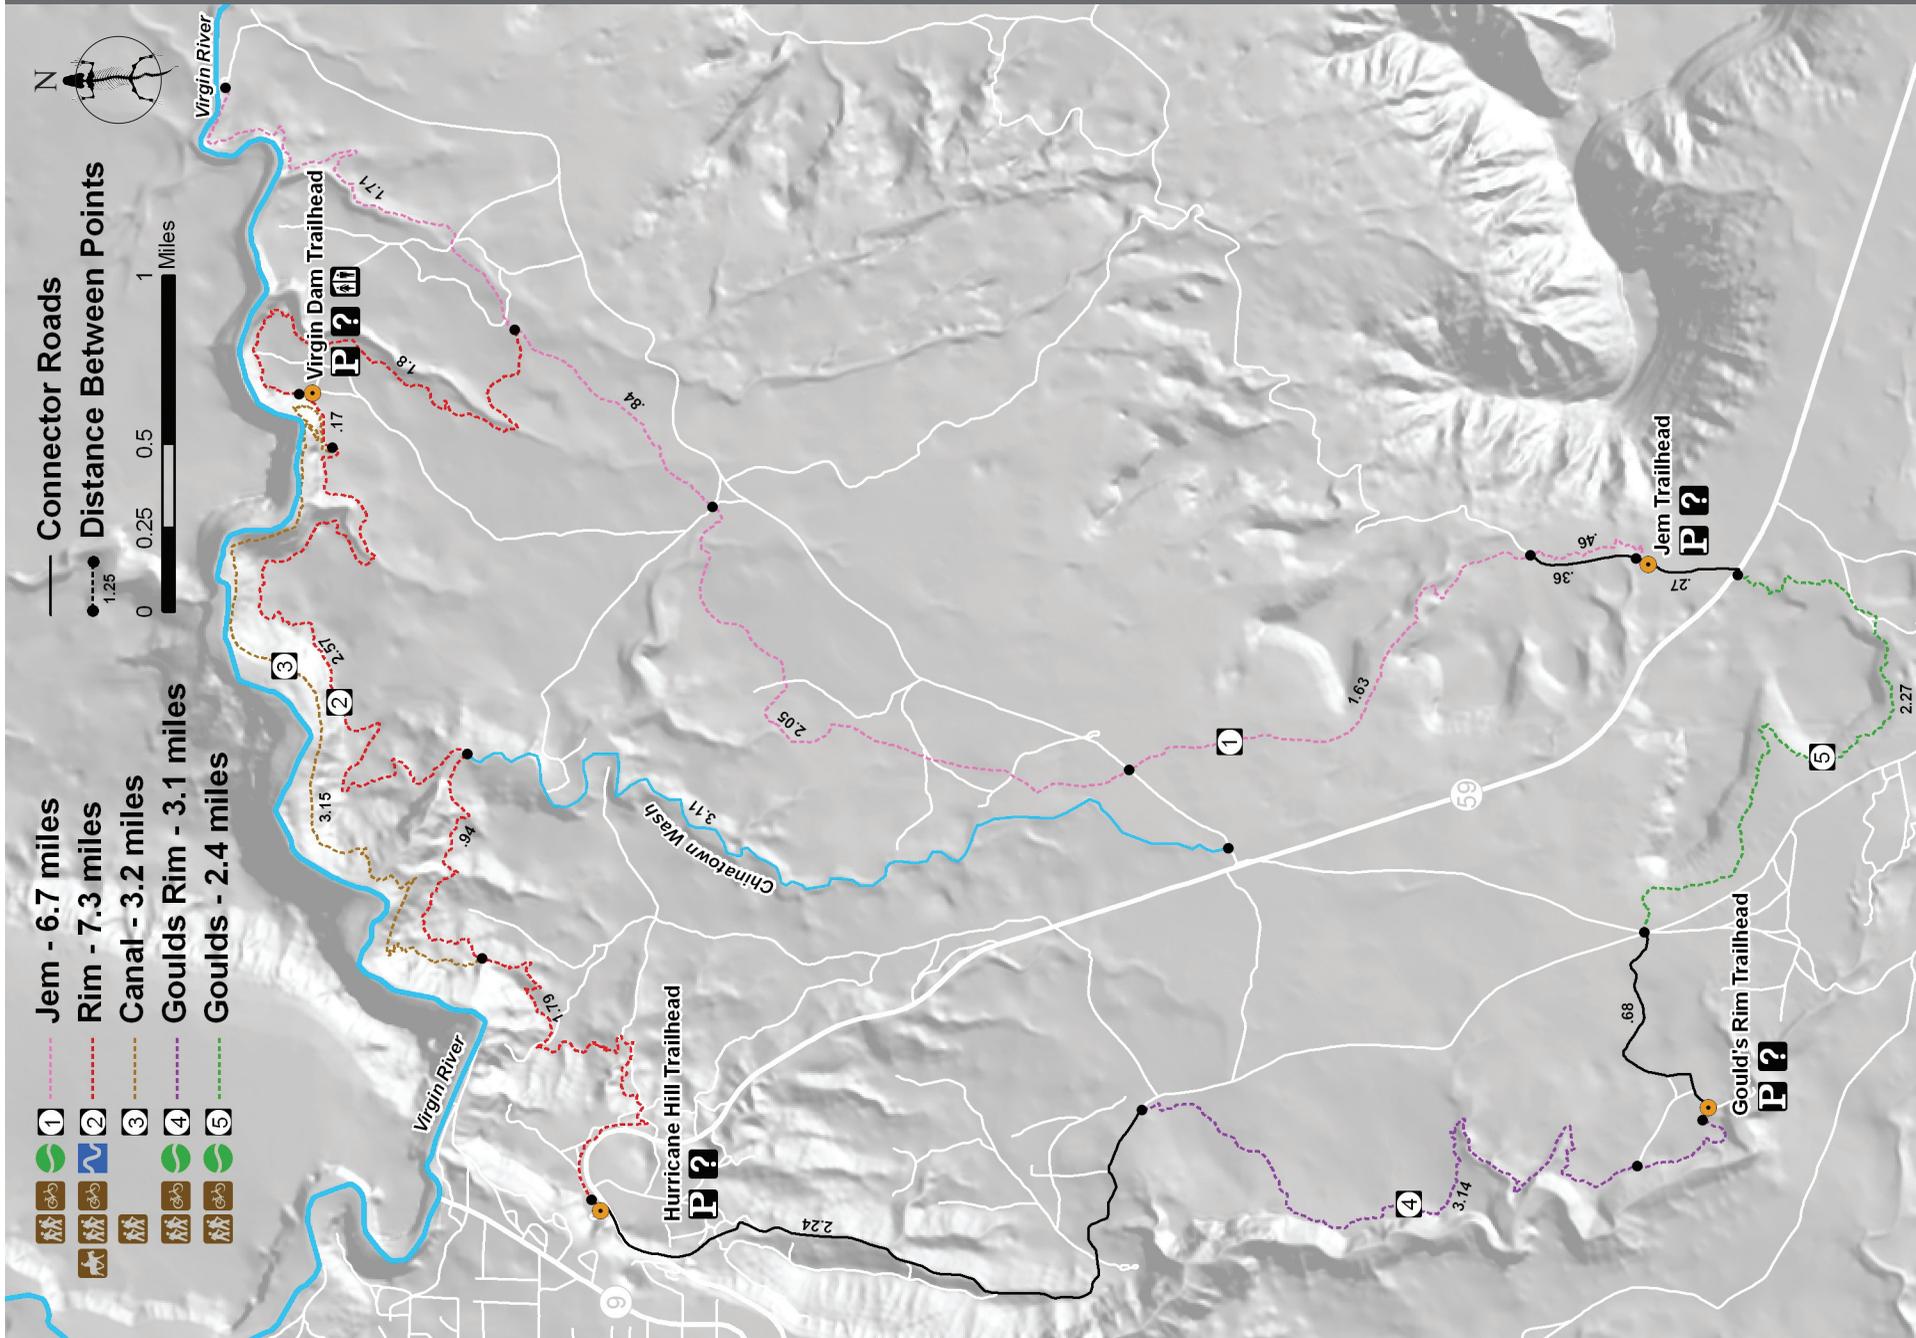

Hurricane Cliffs trail system is located in southern Utah's red rock country. Sandwiched between Gooseberry Mesa on the east, the Virgin River on the north, and the Hurricane Cliffs on the west, the five trails comprising the system traverse 23 miles of Mojave Desert. Views of the surrounding geographic features are stunning. At a 4,000 foot elevation, scenes include the multicolored face of Hurricane Mesa, the spires of Zion National Park, and the chasms of the Virgin River and its tributaries.

All trails are managed by the Bureau of Land Management except the Canal Trail, which is managed by the Hurricane City Historical Preservation Association. The Canal Trail offers hikers a look back into the past as its route is the historic water canal completed in 1904. Only non-motorized users are permitted on the trail system with some restrictions for mountain bikers and equestrians.

Know Your Limits

The desert is a land of extremes: sun, heat, cold, and water. Never venture further than what your knowledge, experience, and supplies can handle. Be prepared, and know what to do in the event of lightning, flash flooding, a medical emergency, or other life threatening event.

Difficulty Ratings

Ratings are based on the IMBA Trail Difficulty System and categorize the technical challenge of the trail, not the physical exertion.

Easiest: Gravel or natural surface that is generally firm and stable. Trail grades average 5% or less with a maximum trail grade of 15%. May have unavoidable obstacles three inches tall or less and taller avoidable obstacles.

More Difficult: Mostly stable natural surface with some variability. Trail grades average 10% or less with a maximum trail grade of 15% or greater. Unavoidable obstacles eight inches tall or less and taller avoidable obstacles.

Tips

- The Canal Trail is narrow with exposed cliffs: not recommended for those with a fear of heights or small children. A flashlight is necessary for the tunnels.
- Combine the Rim, Gould's Rim, Gould's, and Jem trails with the connector roads for a 20.8 mile loop. Ride counter-clockwise.
- Roads off State Route 59 may not be passable when wet.

Trail Signs and Markings

Trails are designated by signs as shown on the right. All trail intersections are signed. Some reassurance signs can be found along the trails. Note that trails segregate user groups due to trail conditions. Please stay on designated trails and use only those trails marked for your specific user group.
